

The Daily Courant.

Monday, June 18. 1716.

London, June 18.

On Saturday arrived a Mail from Holland.

From the Amsterdam Courant, dated June 23.

Lublin, May 31.

THE Waywode of Podolia, the Crown Referendary, and the Lithuanian Secretary, are expected here as Plenipotentiary Deputies of the Polish Confederacy for a Treaty, and Quarters are assigned for them. Lodgings are also prepared for the King's Plenipotentiaries. In regard that the Peasants run away in Crowds from this Land, into Walachia, the Crown Secretary has placed himself in the Waywoodship of Medribor to hinder them.

Cracow, May 31. The Starosta Grudzinsky has with his Detachment fallen upon 2500 Saxon Foot, and 60 Horse, but was obliged to retire to Great Poland.

Warsaw, June 6. Those of the District of Eichapowise have also entered into the Confederacy, and Sworn to it. To Morrow the Prince Dolhoruck, Minister of the Czar of Muscovy, will depart from hence for Lublin; and the next Day the Bishop of Cujavia, and the Saxon Field-Marshal Flemming, will also go thither.

From the Borders of Poland, June 11. The Saxon General Eckstet is departed for Thoro, with a Body of Troops of his Nation, to join some other Saxon Troops that have lain in Prussia, in order to disturb the Council the Confederates intend to hold the 29th at Kole. The Congress at Lublin is put off till to Morrow. In the mean time, the Nobility of several Waywoodships in Lesser Poland, have set up Courts of Judicature, to prosecute those that have sided with the King against the Confederacy.

Vienna, June 10. Altho' the first Report of the Arrival of the Imperial Courier from Constantinople was wrong founded, it is now true, he being since arrived. And we understand that what he brings, consists principally of this, namely, that the Grand Signior refuses to accept the Emperor's Mediation between the Porte and the Venetians; and also rejects the Proposals that have been made for Peace by the Resident Fleischman. 'Tis added, that the said Resident is put into the Seven Towers, upon Pretence of screening him from the Insults of the Populace. Conferences are therefore daily held concerning a War with the Turks, whose Preparations do more and more appear to be designed against Hungary, and its Neighbouring Countries. 'Tis said Count Guido of Staremberg is of Opinion, that the War ought to be begun with the Siege of Temeswaer, but Prince Eugene declares for the Siege of Belgrade, the taking whereof, will cause all the other Fortresses to fall easily into our Hands. The Field-Marshal Count Staremberg, will tarry here to assist the Emperour with his Councils: And the Emperour is come to a Resolution to make a Promotion of Generals, but not to publish it till after the Departure of Prince Eugene. We hear that about the 10th past, a Turkish Envoy arrived at Bukarest in Walachia, with a Train of 40 Persons, and that he brought Orders to the Hespodar, to be ready to take the Field, to furnish a certain Number of Waggon for Hottin, and to let no Cattle go out of his Country. 'Tis added, that the two Boyars, Sprut and Dadeskul, are carried Prisoners to Constantinople, and that the Tartars are still at Home, but ready to execute the Orders of the Ottoman Porte. In the mean time many Turkish Horse have passed the Danube towards Walachia, and the Janisaries with the Saicks, are in march towards Belgrade, under the Command of a Bassa.

From the Hague Courant, dated June 22.

Christiansburg, June 11. The Swedes still lye between Frederickstadt and Frederickshall, but by reason of the great Scarcity of Provisions, they have been forced to send some Detachments to the other Side of the Swine-fund, over the Bridge they have made. They have hitherto undertaken nothing, and there only happens Skirmishes now and then. Admiral Gabel has brought over anew 3400 Men from Jutland, so that we now hope that we may soon see an End of this War.

Copenhagen, June 13. Admiral Norris remains in the Sound, with the Squadron of 21 British Men of War under his Command, and the Merchant Men that came under his Convoy. We understand that he has sent an Express to the King of Sweden, to demand Satisfaction of him for the great Damage done to the English Nation, by the taking of their Ships. The British Squadron seem to wait the Arrival of the Dutch Squadron from the Texel, in order to sail together into the East-Sea: And 'tis yet unknown what English Men of War will join our Fleet. There lye in this Road at present, 8 Russian Men of War along with ours, under Admiral Kaas. The Swedish Ships of War that were in the East Sea, are, with the Ships they have taken, and their Tenders, gone into Carelskroon, and our Men of War that went out to observe them, are come back.

From the Amsterdam Gazette, dated June 23.

Hamburg, June 19. They write from Fredericksburg of the 16th, that the Count de Sponieck, and Colonel Molling, who are arrived from Norway, report that the Swedes are still at the Swine-fund, and are Masters only of three Villages: That Frederickstadt and Frederickshall are sufficiently provided, and have nothing to fear; and that Admiral Norris has had Audience of the King and Royal Family. The Czar is expected at Copenhagen the Beginning of next Month. We hear from Colberg, that the 8000 Russians that were there, are set sail on board the Czar's Gallies for Stralsund, where they are to receive further Orders. The Russian Troops that were in Poland, are already passed by Stettin, in Number 12 Battalions and 1 Squadron, and they advance towards the Country of Mecklenburg.

Paris, June 15. 'Tis said a Courier is arrived from Rome, who was dispatched by Cardinal de la Tremoille, with Advice, that the Pope has absolutely refused to receive the Abbot Chevalier, or listen to his Propositions; his Holiness persisting in his Design of exacting from the Bishops of France the pure and simple Acceptation of the Constitution.

London, June 18.
